War Summary of The Latest Events

General Haig reports that British troops Wednesday recaptured all the ground lost on Tuesday night in Ma-metz Wood. Some progress has also been made in Trones Wood, where the very large number of German dead indicate how costly was the enemy's attempt to retake it. The Germans launched two attacks Wednesday against Contal Maison, but both were repulsed. Berlin, speaking of the struggle in the various positions near the Albert-Bapaume road, admits no reverses. The bulletin of the War Office simply states that "fighting is continuing with bitter stubbornness."

***

There was relative calm all along the French front on both sides of the Somme. The artillery continues to shower projectiles over the environs of Peronne, but it is doubtful if the heavy guns, without which it would not be safe to launch a fresh offensive are yet in position. The largest of these guns, the fifteen-inch howitzers, that can throw a ton of metal and high explosives with the utmost accuracy upon marks as far distant as fourteen or fifteen miles, are probably emplaced on cement platforms and can only be brought up near the front either on specially built roads or on railway tracks laid for the purpose.
A look behind the British and French lines would show thousands of engineers and road-builders busily at work getting the artillery into position for the second stage of the great drive.

***

Following up their success in securing a lodgment in the Damloup work to the south of Vaux, on the Verdun front, the Germans launched 18,000 men Wednesday morning from the village of Fleury and the Woods of Vaux and Chapitre in the direction of Fort Souville, the key of the French second line defences. The midnight Paris report says that "in spite of the massed assaults on a front relatively narrow, the Germans were only able, at the cost of huge losses, to gain a little ground near the Chapel of Sainte Fine, at the point where the roads from Vaux and Fleury meet."

***

This statement indicates that the Germans have progressed a considerable distance along the ridge on which the Forts of Vaux, held by them, and Souville, which they are attacking, are situated. Berlin reports that in pushing their positions up towards Souville German troops captured Wednesday 20 officers and them, and Souville, which they are attacking, are situated. Berlin reports that in pushing their positions up towards Souville German troops captured Wednesday 20 officers and 2,106 men, and completely repulsed a French counter-attack. The most difficult part of their task still lies before them. Southward from Vaux there is a dip in the conformation of the ridge. In this hollow are the remains of what was once a considerable wood among the tree stumps of which the advancing Germans found some shelter. Now they are out of this favorable position and must advance towards Fort Souville up a long and gradual slope, where they have to dig deep to hide themselves from the French on the high ground in front. The enemy will naturally seek to cover their advance by an overpowering strong artillery fire from Vaux and Douamont and the gun positions farther north. The French reports refer frequently to the violent nature of the bombardment at this point, and it seems reasonably certain that in the attack on Fort Souville there will be a concentration of gunfire such as will surpass all previous experiences. The Crown Prince seems to be determined to take Verdun if it costs him the throne. And it may, if he does, for the price already paid has been terrific, and Souville will cost perhaps as many lives as Douamont and Vaux combined.

FARM LABOURERS WANTED.

The Western Provinces of Canada have experienced an acute shortage of Farm Laborers for spring seeding and summer work this year.

Even when times were normal throughout Canada moreover, it was always necessary to bring from twenty-five to thirty thousand laborers from eastern points for the harvest season.

As voluntary enlistments have been very heavy and inasmuch as a successful crop is predicted by the experts, grave fear is being felt along the lines of the Canadian Northern Railway, on account of the difficulty experienced in obtaining labor, which means steady work and good wages for all who visit in the districts served by the C.N.R.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Council Chamber,

July 10th, 1916.

Council met in special session on Monday evening, Mayor G. F. Rut- tan presiding.

Present—Reeve Osborne and Councillors Denison, Graham, Steacy and Robinson.

A communication was read from J. E. Madden on behalf of his clients, the residents residing on Thomas and East streets, leading to the shipping yards at the Grand Trunk Station. Complaint was made that cattle ship- pers taking cattle to the shipping yards allowed them to overrun the sidewalks and lawn, particularly the lawns, thereby causing considerable damage.

Referred to the Printing and By-Laws Committee to confer with the town solicitor, and report.

A communication was read from J. E. Madden, on behalf of his client, D. R. Benson, asking the council to pay the sum of $25.00 for damages sustained to his automobile owing to bad condition of road. The accident occurred on June 15th, on the Bel-leville road, near the C.N.R. crossing, breaking the engine bed and frame. If the amount was not paid within two weeks, action would be taken to collect.

Laid on the table until later in the evening.

Several communications were read relating to a request from Jas. K. Rochester, Mayor of Renfrew, asking for the loan of one of the generators from the old electric light power station. From the communications it would seem that the town of Renfrew is short of power to supply a couple of munition plants in that town, thus the request for the loan of one of the generators from the Napanee plant which is lying idle.

Mayor Rochester visited Napanee and talked the matter over with Mayor Ruttan and several of the councillors. Mayor Ruttan took the position that owing to the dispute between the town and the Hydro Electric Commission, caused by the purchase of the Seymour Power Co. interests in Napanee by the said Hydro Electric Commission, it would be unwise, willing as the town might be, to loan or disturb any part of the machinery or plant of the Seymour Power Co., as it might very easily injure the case of the town in the dispute with the Hydro Commission.

On motion of Reeve Osborne and Coun. Graham the several communica- tions were referred to the town solicitor for an opinion.

Mayor Ruttan informed the council that at the recent recruiting meeting held in Napanee he had been requested to procure a deputation to attend a general conference, in regard to recruiting, to be held in the City

The World's Most Powerful Low Priced Car 31 1/2 H. P.

ANNOUNCING THE NEW SERIES

75 B

$890
f.o.b Toronto

Overland

$890
f.o.b Toronto

This newest Overland is the world's most powerful low-priced car. It has a 31 $\frac{1}{2}$  horsepower en bloc motor that is a perfect marvel for speed, power and endurance.

By increasing the bore of the motor from 3 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 3 $\frac{3}{4}$  inches we are able to offer a power plant which at 1950 R.P.M. develops full 31 $\frac{1}{2}$  horse power.

Tests under every condition in all parts of the Dominion demonstrate that it easily develops better than fifty miles per hour on the road. Speed of course varies under different conditions, but in practically every instance it has been getting fifty miles an hour and with ease.

We have scores of telegrams showing that twenty to twenty-five miles per gallon of gasoline is not unusual.

The performance of this car is almost beyond belief.

Take any other low-priced car on the market. Pit it against this new Overland. Compare them for sheer speed, for abundance of power, for riding comfort and economy, and you'll find this car will back anything else clean off the boards.

That's a strong statement, but a fact nevertheless.

Try it yourself and see.

Here are more important facts.

It has four-inch tires which are more than generous for a car of this size. Not only has it a large and roomy body, but it has an attractive, up-to-date streamline body.

It has the latest and most improved system of ignition.

It has the cantilever springs—the easiest riding springs in the world.

What's more, it's complete. Not a thing to buy. You get the finest Auto-Lite electric starting and lighting system, magnetic speedometer, one-man top, demountable rims and practically every accessory found on the highest priced cars.

From a driving standpoint, the new car is ideal. It's light, easy to handle and anyone can drive it.

Take one look and be convinced. And mark these words—the car is destined to be regarded and referred to as one of the really great achievements of the great automobile industry.

Yet it only goes to prove how big production can cut cost and save you money.

First come, first served. Place your order now.

that at the recent recruiting meeting held in Napanee he had been requested to procure a deputation to attend a general conference in regard to recruiting, to be held in the City of Kingston on Thursday, July 13th. He had selecting the following gentlemen, and they had consented to go: U. M. Wilson, J. N. Osborne, W. T. Waller, M. P. Graham and Mayor Ruttan.

A communication was read from Mr. W. Adams, Reeve of Newburgh, in reference to the action being taken by a committee of the County Council of Lennox and Addington, concerning the poor service given by the Canadian Northern Railway Co. over their road in this county. A public meeting is to be held in Tam- worth on Thursday evening, and if the town had any grievances he would like a resolution to that effect passed so that it might be brought up at the said public meeting. The public meeting was being called to formulate a plan or scheme whereby these several grievances might be placed before the Board of Railway Commissioners.

On motion of Reeve Osborne, seconded by Coun. J. E. Robinson, it was decided that a resolution be forwarded to the public meeting at Tam- worth setting forth the fact that Napanee has several serious grievances in reference to service given by the C.N. Railway and they would be pleased to co-operate with the County Council Committee in procuring such evidence to be presented before the Board of Railway Commissioners when an appointment with them can be secured.

The Streets Committee reported as follows: 1-In reference to the petition for a drain on Thomas street it was not thought advisable to lay a pipe drain until such time as a sewer has been constructed connecting with Bridge street, but that the present drain be cleared out and no further action takes this year. 2-That the Madole Hardware Co. account, $136.04, was correct, and recommended payment. 3-In reference to claim of damage by D. R. Benson. The Committee had examined the road where the accident occurred and found the road in a dangerous condition. They also investigated in regard to amount of damage caused to the car and found amount claimed was correct. They therefore recommended payment of damage claim.

Report adopted.

Coun. Graham informed the Council that the teamsters, working on corporation work, were asking for $4.00 per day. The general opinion of the council seemed to be that if the teamsters would draw a yard and a half of material at each load no objection would be made to paying $4.00 per day for such services.

16,000 PRISONERS TAKEN.

Week of Allied Offensive Has Shown Splendid Results.

PARIS, July 11.—The French official report says: "The operations on the Somme front from July 1 to 7 resulted in the capture by us of more than 9,500 prisoners. Among the important war materials that we took we counted up Sunday 75 cannon and several hundred machine guns.

A Reuter correspondent sends this despatch, dated Saturday, at the press camp of the British army:

"It being a week ago to-day since the British offensive developed, the occasion is opportune to review the progress made. We have pushed in the German salient between Albert and the Somme to an extreme depth at the point of our greatest advance of about three miles. We hold the villages of Montauban, Fricourt, and Mametz, and are well across the fringe of Contalmaison. At various intervening points of tactical importance our line is firmly established.

"We have taken upward of 6,000 prisoners, 21 guns, 51 machine guns, a large number of automatic rifles, trench mortars, minenwerfers, search lights, and other military booty.

"The enemy is known to have suffered terrible losses. For example, the third division of the Prussian Guard, brought up as reinforcements, has been so depleted that the remnants of the corps have been withdrawn as no longer war-worthy for the time. Prisoners says that the morale of these guards is badly shaken, this applying equally to the officers.

"The heavy rains of the last two days have much impeded the operations. Nevertheless, our troops have been fighting incessantly, and in many spots have made substantial gains. The spirit of the men is wonderful. They fully realize they are now playing the part of the top dog.

"As proof of their dash it may be mentioned that in their advances there are practically no stragglers, so eager are all to get to their goal. This, under the heavy conditions of trench warfare, with no man's land often like a quagmire, is truly wonderful. There is every reason to be satisfied alike with the progress and prospects."

"THE WAR IS FINISHED."

So Say German Soldiers When Cap- tured by French.

PARIS, July 11.—The new French front before Peronne appears to have been fortified now so as to facilitate flanking movements southward and a widening of the position already conquered. French infantry inaugurated this operation Saturday night by successful attacks in the region of Belloy-en-Santerre, where 850 Germans were made prisoners, and east of Estrees, where fifty men were left in French hands after an assault on a communicating trench.

The French had scarcely reached the first line of their adversaries when the Germans were seen climbing out of the trenches in clusters with their hands up and marching in double-quick time toward the French trenches.

"The war is finished. The war is finished," cried many of them with their faces expanding into smiles as they leaped into the French communicating trenches and filed back to

ADVANCING ON KOVEL

Russians Continue Victorious Progress in the East.

Crossing of the Stokhod River is Being Made at Various Points in the Face of Serious Difficulties Owing to the Destruction of the Bridges by the Retreating Austrians—Germans Anxious Over the Result.

LONDON, July 11.—The Russian forces advancing in Volhynia towards Kovel are crossing the River Stokhod at various points, closely pressing the Teutonic forces opposing them, says yesterday's Russian War Office statement.

The passage of the river is being accomplished under serious difficulties, the crossings of the river having in most cases been destroyed by the opposing armies.

Admission of the withdrawal of the Austro-German lines along the Styrian River was made in the official statement issued in Vienna Sunday. The Austrian forces were ordered to retreat, according to this statement, because their advanced lines were exposed to a double flanking movement from "hostile forces which have increased from threefold to fivefold superiority."

No less than eight important villages along both sides of the railway from Sarny to Kovel were captured by the swiftly-moving Russian armies, and more than 2,000 prisoners were bagged.

The fall of strategic positions north and south of the railway paved the way for a cavalry rush in the centre which swept everything before it and made the Russians masters of the whole triangle comprising Kolki, Rafalowka and Manevitchie.

Sunday the irresistible advance of the Russians forced them across the stream at one vital point and enveloped two more villages south of the Sarny-Kovel railway. The Teutons Sunday night were in disorderly flight along the whole front in this sector, and the Russians are moving forward from a point only 24 miles from Kovel.

The crossing by the Russians of the Stokhod River near Ugli and Janovka, which are reported in flames, seriously threatens the Austro-German forces from two sides. Ugli is about half-way between the two railways running into Kovel from Rovno and Sarny. The Teutonic salient eating its way into the front at the centre exposes both groups to a flank attack, and opens the way for the capture by the Muscovite armies of the life-lines of the enemy.

Two-days' fighting between the Styrian and the Stokhod has resulted in the capture of 12,000 unwounded men.

Sunday night's Russian communication reports the enemy forces in this region retiring in great disorder, and adds that the Russians have occupied Hulevichi, which is about 24 miles to the east of Kovel, while apparently the Russians are already across the Stokhod River somewhere in the region of Janovka.

Franco-British Effort Is Not Intended to Pierce German Front.

PARIS, July 11.—The Paris military critics contrast the Franco-British offensive on the Somme and the Russian offensive, but find a similarity between the former and the German effort against Verdun, where each big operation has been followed by some days of trench to trench actions.

The Franco-British effort, the critics say, is not to pierce the front, but to keep up a steady pressure. The military critic of Le Journal calls it an adaptation to field warfare of the lessons learned in the siege warfare at Verdun.

Gen. Malleterre writes: "If it is not yet a general offensive preparatory to a general assault, it is a combined progressive pressure preventing the enemy from shuffling his forces among the various fronts and thus depriving the enemy of the benefit of his central situation."

The Matin says that the cannons captured by the French and British in the last few days include French guns from Maubeuge and Russian guns captured on the eastern front in 1915.

Russians Capture Line of Fortified Positions Near Erzerum.

LONDON, July 11.—The official statement issued by the Russian War Office regarding the operations on the Caucasus front reports continued success.

In the region south of the town of Platana the Turks made violent attacks on the night of July 6-7, but were repulsed by Russian fire.

West of the Erzerum line an entire line of fortified positions were captured by the Russian troops, and 67 officers and 799 men were made prisoners. Of the officers two were regimental commanders and one a battery commander. Seven machine guns and one cannon were also taken.

Sunday's Petrograd War Office report says:

"On Saturday in combats west of the Erzerum line one of our columns took prisoner 64 officers and 1,050 soldiers, and captured a great quantity of arms, ammunition, and engineering material."

Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. German possession of Baranovichi and Kovel are absolutely essential if she is to retain her hold over the invaded parts of Poland and Lithuania, but it is considered likely that it is only a matter of a few days before the Russians will be in possession of Kovel, which would compel von Linssen's retirement from the Lutsk salient.

German official and unofficial despatches reflect anxiety over the Russian advances as being greater than over the Anglo-French offensive, which the German military critics contend will not interfere with the operations against Verdun. Major Morath and other German critics express surprise at the extent and persistence of the Russian offensive and the endless resources of ammunition.

It is reported from Rome that at a recent council of German and Austrian marshals, von Hindenburg declared that it would be impossible to attempt a new offensive on a large scale without reinforcements of at least a quarter of a million men.

Meanwhile the successes of the Russians in Galicia are preparing the way for a great victory in that sector. Saturday Gen. Letchitzky captured the important railroad junction of Delatyn, west of Kolomea, and in the same stroke cut off Gen. von Bothmer from his principal base of supplies. A vast amount of booty fell into the Russians' hands with the capture of the city.

In Southern Bukowina the Austrians have rallied and pressed across the Moldava River, according to Vienna.

ADVANCE IN MOLINO BASIN.

Italian Troops Move Towards Forni, Capturing Munitions.

ROME, July 11.—The War Office made public the following communication Sunday:

"On the upper Astico our infantry advanced in the Molino basin and toward Forni. We captured arms, ammunition, and other material left by the enemy.

"Dense mist prevented all activity of artillery on Sette Comuni plateau. In the northern sector we stormed some trenches north of Monte Chieso and occupied Agnella Pass, taking about forty prisoners.

"In the upper Campelle Valley we regained possession of the Dighiovane pass.

"Along the Isenzo front the enemy's artillery was particularly active in the Tolmino and Plava sectors and on the heights north-west of Gorizia. Our artillery replied effectively. In the night of July 7 we repulsed two further attacks on positions which we captured recently in the Monfalcone area."

BASQUES OF THE PYRENEES.

Those on the Spanish Slopes Are the Pure Aborigines of Europe.

You are in the habit of thinking of the inhabitants of France as "French" and the inhabitants of Spain as "Spanish." Did you happen to read a learned disquisition on the shape of the skulls of people living on the two slopes of the Pyrenees, together with the announcement that, contrary to the belief of scientists, the Basques are not all of the same origin? And then did you ask, "Who are the Basques?" Primarily they are the people who gave to the rest of the world a curious kind of garment for women, but they are far more interesting to the student of anthropology and the historical development of language than they are to the designers of women's clothes.

There was a time before the present generation of scientists got to work on the problem when the Basques, both in Spain and in France, were recognized as the last remnant of the original occupants of Europe, the people who were driven into this backwater of civilization by the onrush of the Celts. The Celts were in their turn driven westward and into such out of the way corners as they could hold, so that they are now represented by certain strains in Spain, by the Bretons in France, the Irish, Scotch, Welsh, Cornish and Manx in the British isles and by a substratum of the Bohemians and the Gallians. Those who preceded them and who managed to cling to the mountain strongholds of the Pyrenees are remotely related to the Finns in another remote backwater. The ones on the Spanish slopes are the pure aborigines of Europe.

Anaesthetic For the Teeth Wanted.

There is no local anaesthetic that will penetrate dentine, which forms the principal part of a tooth. That is why dentists hurt teeth so much when drilling holes in them for fillings or when grinding them down for gold crowns. Any one who will invent something that can be put on a tooth to render it insensitive for ten minutes without injuring it has a fortune awaiting him.

Cocaine and novocaine, which are used as local anaesthetics in other parts of the body, have no effect upon the teeth, as they cannot penetrate the hard tissue of which these are composed.

A Carlyle Snub.

Carlyle had an inveterate hatred for Darwinism, which he described as the "gorilla damnification of humanity." Leonard Huxley in his life of his father recalls an incident that happened shortly before Carlyle's death. "My father," he writes, "saw him walking slowly and alone down the opposite side of the street and, touched by his solitary appearance, crossed over and spoke to him. The old man looked at him and, merely remarking, 'You're Huxley, aren't you, the man that says we are all descended from the monkeys?' went on his way."

SCENTING A CRIME

How a Russian Police Inspector Formulated a Theory.

WORKING UP A MURDER CASE.

He Made All the Known Facts in the Case Fit Into Each Other Perfectly and Then Proceeded to Demonstrate His Accuracy of Deduction.

We are not encouraged to believe that the Russian police inspector is the equal of the trained French official if Anton Chekhoff's story of the deductive method in Russia is illustrative.

One morning a young man hurried into the office of an inspector of police and reported that his master, an officer of the guard who had been separated from his wife and lived alone, had been murdered. He was greatly excited. The inspector went with him at once to the scene of the tragedy.

When he arrived at the house he found the door to the officer's bedroom locked, the key on the inside. The servants, unable to awake their master, had concluded that he was dead. The inspector found the door uninjured. He had it forced open. The bed had been tossed about, the pillows on the floor. On a table near the bed was the officer's watch and some silver coins. The officer and his clothing were gone except for a single boot that lay on the floor. The inspector examined the room carefully. The only thing he found was a partly burned safety match. It was known that the officer did not smoke and used only sulphur matches for his candles. He examined the garden below the window. The grass and some bushes had been trampled. He found a piece of cotton on some twigs and some fine threads of dark blue wool. At some distance from the window, in the garden under a bush, he found the second top boot.

The inspector came to the conclusion, from the evidences, that the man had been strangled and his body taken out through the window.

The fact that the watch and money were undisturbed showed that the purpose of the crime was not robbery. The safety match indicated that some person above the ordinary was connected with the affair, since peasants or common servants would have only sulphur matches. The fact that one boot remained in the room made the inspector believe that the guardsman had been killed while he was undressing. The finding of the other boot in the garden indicated that this one had been partly removed and had fallen off while the body was being carried away.

The inspector in his report reconstructed the crime: On the evening in question the guardsman, who had been on a prolonged debauch, went to his room drunk. As he sat on his bed, taking off one of his boots, he had been attacked and smothered with the pillow. During the struggle the candle

CHINESE PORCELAINS.

Wine Cups Like "Tilted Lotus Leaves Floating Down a Stream."

To look long upon Chinese porcelains is likely for numerous causes to result in falling under their persuasive spell. If you are interested in the sculptural stage of art, susceptible to the beauty of line, you will find it there in dignified simplicity. In color the eye is appealed to in a seductive infinity. In range of decorative motives the Celestial potter's mind is fertile with an imagery found only in the east. And there must not be left out of account the interest and satisfaction awaiting the technical student of structure that is found in a substance so quickly responsive to the deft touch of the artisan.

"The fine white bowls surpass hoarfrost and snow" is a Chinese description of one of the ancient fistic fabrics. As the aroma of a delicate wine is enriched and refined by being served in a fragile glass, so the tea drinkers as far back as the days of the T'ang, in the seventh and eighth centuries, appreciated their bowls, according as they "enhanced the tint of the infusion." And here comes in another element in the charm of Chinese porcelains. Like the European art of the middle ages and the renaissance, they were so intimately related to life that they contribute to a human and better understanding of a strange and distant people. No sooner is one interested in this truly national art of the Chinese than he finds a certain even if meager knowledge of them a matter of concomitant interest, even though not essential to an appreciation of their creations.

Wine cups of the T'ang were likened by their poets to "tilted lotus leaves floating down a stream." There came into porcelain the hue of "rosy dawn." Does one not find here a sympathetic communion with nature in far Cathay? Those so called "ginger jars" of the capriciously named "hawthorn pattern"—the most commonly known of all Chinese porcelains in the occident—were used for sending presents of fine tea at the Chinese New Year anniversary. Their decoration, which has nothing to do with the hawthorn, was made in representation of the blossoms of the winter blooming wild prunus tree lying on streams whose ice covering was disintegrating under the warming influences of the approaching vernal season.—Dana H. Carroll

Art a Trustworthy History.

Great nations write their autobiographies in three manuscripts—the book of their deeds, the book of their words and the book of their art. Not one of these books can be understood unless we read the two others, but of the three the only quite trustworthy one is the last. The acts of a nation may be triumphant by its good fortune, and its words mighty by the genius of a few of its children, but its art only by the general gifts and common sympathies of the race.—John Ruskin.

James Russell Lowell was not the kind of writer to take his own productions seriously. He was not like Tennyson, who could be made wretched by a disparaging remark about his poetry by a young girl. That is perhaps the way a poet ought to feel, however skillful he may be in concealing it. Lowell told me that a young Englishman, on being introduced to him in Madrid, said, "I never read your works," to which he had replied, "Well, I never regarded them as necessary to a liberal education."

Sensitive.

A polite young man called upon another young man, unfortunately not at that time at home. So the first young man left a note for the second young man saying that he was "sorry to have found him out." The second young man in reply wrote the first young man a long and very pained letter, in which he declared that he had always tried to do the best he could and had always meant to be fair to everybody.

The Appian Way.

The famous Appian way, mentioned by almost every Roman writer, connected the Eternal City with all parts of south Italy. For many miles from Rome the space on each side was filled with sepulchers, many of them of persons distinguished in history. To have a sepulcher on the Appian way was equivalent to being buried in Greenwood, in New York, or Pere Lachaise, in Paris.

How It Works.

"I don't see why mothers can't see the faults in their children," said Mrs. Smith to Mrs. Jones.

"Do you think you can?" asked Mrs. Jones.

"Why, I would in a minute if my children had any." — Ladies' Home Journal.

Churches In Colonial Days.

The New England churches in colonial days were all unheated. In Miss Earle's book on "Home Life In Colonial Days" we find that few of these places of worship had stoves until the middle of the last century. The chill of the damp places, never heated from autumn to spring and closed and dark throughout the week, was hard for every one to bear. In some of the log built meeting houses fur bags made of wolf skins were nailed to the seats, and in the winter church attendants thrust their feet in them. Dogs, too, were permitted to enter the meeting house and lie on their master's feet. Dog whippers or dog pelters were had to control or expel them when they became unruly or unbearable.

A Unique Specimen.

"I once knew an eccentric man," stated old Festus Pester, "who when he had got the desired number on the telephone did not demand fiercely, 'Whiz ziss?' Instead he invariably said civilly, 'This is John J. Poppendick, wishing to speak to Mr. Buckover.' His funeral was the largest ever held in the neighborhood where he had resided, and therat strong men broke down and wept like children, being convinced that they would never again see his like."

taking off one of his boots, he had been attacked and smothered with the pillow. During the struggle the candle was knocked over and afterward one of the assassins relighted it, striking a safety match. When the man was dead his body had been taken out through the window and carried across the garden. As it passed the lilac bush the remaining boot, partly removed by the man before he was attacked, dropped off.

The inspector, having arrived at this deduction, determined to locate the safety match. He went to all the shops in every direction, but not one of them carried in its stock such a thing as a box of safety matches. Finally, at some distance from the scene of the tragedy, he found a shopkeeper who had a single pack of such matches. It was a broken pack, with one box missing. The shopkeeper remembered precisely who had purchased this missing box. It was the wife of the guardsman, a big, masculine woman of unusual physical strength. She lived near the apartment in which the guardsman had been murdered. It was now night, but the inspector went at once to the woman and charged her with the murder of her husband.

"I know all about it," he said. "Take me at once to the place where you have concealed your husband."

She got a key from a nail on the wall and went out into the courtyard. The inspector followed. They finally reached a little house at the end of the garden. The woman unlocked the door and they entered. By the light of a candle the inspector saw the long body of a man lying motionless on a bed in the corner of the room. He approached to examine the murdered body.

But here his deductions went to pieces. The supposed dead man sat up, and the explanation of all the tragic incidents appeared. The guardsman was going to bed every night drunk. His wife heard of it and went across the garden to his window to remonstrate with him. He put the window up and, seeing who it was, threw his boot at her. She was a resolute woman in masculine efficiency. She climbed in through the window, thrashed the drunken guardsman soundly, dragged him across the garden and locked him up in the bathhouse, where she determined to keep him until he should be sober. He had been thus a prisoner for one day, while with swift deductions the inspector had worked out his complicated murder.—Melville Davisson Post in Saturday Evening Post.

Never quit when failure stares you in the face. A little more energy often changes a failure into a great success.

Justified Worry.

"Jaggers must be a devoted husband. He told me his wife met with an accident and that he was worried sick for fear she should attempt to be active with her injury too soon."

"What was her injury?"

"She dislocated her jaw."

Camel Carriages.

Camel carriages are not common conveyances in most parts of India, but on the great trunk road leading to Delhi they are frequently to be seen. They are large, double story wagons, drawn sometimes by one, sometimes by two or even three camels, according to their size. Iron bars which give them a cage-like appearance were originally intended as a defense against robbers, and the carts were probably also used for the conveyance of prisoners.

The Chipmunk Is a Hermit.

Evidently the chipmunk has no partner and will spend the winter in his subterranean retreat alone. I think this is an established chipmunk custom, rendered necessary, it may be, by the scant supply of air in such close quarters, three feet underground, and maybe under three or more feet of snow in addition. At any rate, the chipmunk, male and female, is a hermit, and there is no co-operation or true sociability among them. They are wonderfully provident and industrious, beginning to store up their winter food in midsummer or as early as the farmer does his.—John Burroughs

Overheard Under the Sea.

"Hypocrite!" cried the swordfish to the clam.

"Why hypocrite?" retorted the clam. "You consider yourself the emblem of pacifism, and yet all the time you and your tribe are engaged in the making of shells!" sneered the swordfish.

Consoling.

"What did you say your age was?" he remarked, between dances.

"Well, I didn't say," smartly returned the girl, "but I've just reached twenty-one."

"Is that so?" he returned consolingly. "What detained you?"

His Merits.

"We object to the young man who is courting our daughter because he is a shoemaker."

"Why, a shoemaker is the best sort of a man, because he is usually whole-soled and well beaded."

"In these days that is no reason for not being engaged to a man."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Easy For Him.

"How do you make the distinction between popular and classical music?" asked the very young man.

"Oh, that's easy!" answered the dispenser of home grown philosophy. "It's popular if I enjoy it, and it is classic if I don't."

FORSAKEN ENKHUIZEN.

At One Time One of Holland's Richest and Greatest Cities.

Of all the so called "dead cities" of the Zuider Zee, Enkhuizen has most completely lost her former prosperity.
One who wanders about her silent and empty streets can impossibly realize that this shrunken and depopulated city was once one of the wealthiest and most important in Holland.

Enkhuizen dates from the ninth century or even earlier. In the zenith of its greatness, the seventeenth century, it possessed 40,000 inhabitants and a fishing fleet of 400 boats engaged in the herring trade. Enkhuizen sailors were well known for their courage and seafaring ability.

But less than a hundred years later the harbor of Enkhuizen was silting up, and her commerce had already declined. Since then whole streets have been pulled down, as the population diminished, for only a few thousand inhabitants remain. But the ancient gate, the Dromedaris, that guards its now empty harbor still stands, a monument of the past greatness of Enkhuizen.

The noble Wester kerk is built of the deep red, narrow bricks often used in Netherlands architecture. In its choir are some sixteenth century wood carvings. Its unlovely wooden belfry is detached, but connected with the church by a minute but attractive old house. The small, old, red tiled houses, each with a different facade, form an irregular line that is singularly charming. The streets of the little town are very quiet and empty. Their stillness is almost unbroken except by some beautiful chimes.—Argonaut.

Bullfighting.

In tradition the bullfight dates from the time before Hercules is said to have visited Spain and driven off the wonderful cattle of Geryon. In actual recorded history it antedates Caesar's campaign in Hispania, but the fight that is witnessed by the present day visitor in Madrid, Seville or Valencia is far more exciting and cruel than the contests between the noble Spaniard and the noble bull four centuries ago.
A first class spectacle now involves the torturing and killing of seven or eight bulls and at least thirty horses.

A Hearty Eater.

In a book on gastronomy appears this anecdote of the gastronomic prowess of a Swiss guard in the employment of the Marechal de Villars: "One day the guard was sent for by the marechal, who had heard of his enormous appetite. 'How many sirloins of beef can you eat?' he tentatively asked.
'Ah, monsieur, for me I don't require many—five or six at the most.'
'And how many legs of mutton?'
'Legs of mutton? Not many—seven or eight.' 'And fat pullets?' 'Oh, as to pullets, only a few—a dozen.' 'And of pigeons?' 'As to pigeons, monsieur, not many—forty, perhaps fifty.' 'And larks?' 'Larks, monsieur? Always.'

SNEEZING OMENS.

At One Time to Sneeze Was Regarded as a Death Warrant.

Sneezing from very remote times has been regarded with superstition.

Our forefathers went to bed again if they sneezed while putting on their shoes. A sneeze to the right was deemed lucky; to the left, of evil port-tent. To sneeze near a burial place was very unlucky.

Tradition has it that sneezing was at first a fatal sign—every human being sneezed but once and then died—but Jacob petitioned the Creator to remove the sneezing ban and succeeded.
Thence arose the once universal custom of saluting a sneezer with "God bless you!" or "May you live long!"
The custom still obtains in some parts of Europe.

In England not only was a sneezer blessed, but friends raised their hats to him as well. In an old book, "The Code of Conduct," it is directed that "if his lordship sneezes ye are not to bawl out 'God bless you!' but bow to him handsomely." All over the world the sneeze was recognized. Whole nations were under orders to make exclamations when their king sneezed.

Sneezing was believed to be a sure cure for hiccough and was also looked upon as a sign of sanity. If ancient and universal belief goes for anything it is good to sneeze.—London Telegraph.

WHEN WORK BECOMES PLAY.

The Secret of Contentment Is Found In Proper Employment.

A philosopher once said that "no man properly employed was ever miserable." And a more truthful statement was never made.

To be properly employed one must be engaged in a business in which he has faith and confidence and for which he has respect. If he doubts the legitimacy of the business, if he must resort to practices which he feels are questionable, if he isn't proud of his occupation, he is not properly employed. If the work he is given to perform palls upon him, if he feels that he ought to be doing something else, if he envies the other employee his place in the shop or factory, then the work deadens and destroys, and misery follows.

The writers got things balled up when they talked about work and play. Too great a distinction was drawn. Play was pictured as something that gave happiness and work as something which one performed only because he was hungry.

The truth is, it is all play or ought to be, for the man who is properly employed is only engaged in playing. He gets as much delight from it as he formerly got from the childish games or should. Certainly there can be no misery where a man has found his work.

EDIBLE BIRDS' NESTS.

They Are a Delicacy in the Orient and Bring High Prices.

An important item in the export trade of Siam consists of edible nests of swifts, or swiftlets, as they are also called. The principal markets for this trade are China, Hongkong and Singapore. In Hongkong, it is said, the demand often exceeds the supply, and prices range from $15 to $25 per pound, according to quality.

The first nests constructed in the season, which are composed of pure saliva, are held superior for eating purposes. They are gathered on completion before the eggs are laid.

The birds then build again, and the second nests, in which the saliva is mixed with rootlets, grass, etc., and often shows traces of blood from the efforts made to produce saliva, are also taken on completion.

A third nest is then constructed of extraneous substances cemented together and the whole fastened to the wall by a little saliva, the flow of which seems to be practically exhausted. The birds are allowed to rear their young in these nests, which are afterward destroyed by the nest gatherers, so as to compel the construction of fresh nests the following year.

Edible nests of swiftlets are found in the Malay archipelago, Australia and many of the Pacific islands. In north-

The Way to Float.

This is the advice of an old swimmer to those who cannot swim: "Any human being who will have the presence of mind to clasp the hands behind his back and turn the face toward the zenith may float at ease and in perfect safety in tolerably still water. When you first find yourself in deep water you have only to consider yourself an empty pitcher. Let your mouth and nose and not the top of your heavy head be the highest part of you and you are safe. But thrust up one of your bony hands and down you go—turning up the handle tips over the pitcher." There are reason and logic in this.

A Street in Moscow.

One street in Moscow, Mlaznitskaya Ulitsa, is devoted almost entirely to stores selling machinery. The windows of these shops are large and of plate glass and display the various wares to good advantage. Many windows are devoted to large exhibits of various mechanisms, and at a certain hour in the afternoon these machines are, so far as possible, set in motion to give practical illustration of their workings.

Dispositions.

The dispositions of men are different. A house is managed well by men and women of different dispositions, just as much as a carpenter cannot build a house with big and tall timbers only. Even a man of obstinacy or argumentative is not unnecessary in a family. But there must be a supervision over them all. If there is no one who binds them all the different dispositions bring confusion to the house.—Kyoo.

Erzerum.

Erzerum means in Arabic "the fortress of Rome," for Rome and Byzantium, capitals of the old and new Roman empires, took turns in keeping it as an outpost against the hordes north of the Caucasus mountains. Then in the thirteenth century Islam conquered the city on its way to Europe.

Mythology of Dragons.

The mythology of dragons is immensely mixed. The one thing certain seems to be that of the many writers who describe them not one ever saw them. Many of the descriptions come nearer to a winged crocodile than any thing else, and the conjecture that the dragon idea was developed from some tradition of an extinct saurian seems probable. In the gypsy lore of southeastern Europe the "drakos" becomes the ogre of the nursery. He takes a human wife, hunts, is an expert in horseflesh and lives, of course, in a palace. Andrew Lang pointed out that the modern Greek story of "the last Drakos" is the same as that told in Scotland of "the last Pict."

A Simple Matter.

"So you are in the market for an automobile?"

"Yes," said the man who likes to attract attention.

"Any particular make?"

"No. I merely want one that will make people turn around and stare at me when I pass."

"Oh, you don't need a special type for that. Get an ordinary car and exceed the speed limit."

Did you ever reckon how many times a day you say "I can't" or hear it said?

Probably a much shorter stunt would be to count the number of times you hear or say, "I will."

These two sentences contain the whole story of character. They are the metal from which men shape success or failure.

We hammer and forge this metal daily.

With "I can't" we cast a weight which fastens us down. With "I will" we shape a marvelous spring which some day lands us at the height of our ambition.

After awhile we cannot move the weight at all, but in the end we cannot resist the spring. It raises us in spite of ourselves, for "I will" has become a habit.

Sometimes a man who has weighted himself down by repeating "I can't" says enviously, "Nothing succeeds like success." And this is true, but he forgets that back of the first success was an "I will" and then another and then another.

"I can't." "I will." There are the two most important sentences in any man's vocabulary.

Would we not better reverse the number of times most of us use them every day?

Her Rousseau.

Frederick Lemaitre, the celebrated actor, was somewhat parsimonious. When his daughter was about to marry Lemaitre agreed to provide the "dot" and the trousseau. "Dot," it may be observed, is the French equivalent for the English "dower."

When the notary came to complete the contract and was reading the terms Lemaitre said: "The daughter of Frederick Lemaitre has not need of a dot. M. Le Notaire, strike out the dot."

The prospective son-in-law was present, and he had the courage to reply: "The daughter of Frederick Lemaitre can easily clothe herself with the fame of her father. M. Le Notaire, pray strike out the trousseau."

A Warning.

"What are you doing in my room?" asked the man who was awakened by a burglar.

"I'm robbing the place."

"You merely think you are. Everything here was bought on the installment plan, and if you take the property you'll be responsible for the balance. You're not robbing anybody. You're running into debt."

Got Him Guessing.

"Why these cloves, my dear?"
I thought you were fond of them," explained the innocent young bride. "You seem to partake of them downtown every day."

Then he looked fixedly at her, but could arrive at no conclusion as to her motives.

The Proper Spirit.

"That ticket seller has the right idea."

"In what way?"

"He doesn't act as though he was doing me a personal favor to sell me tickets of admission to his theater."—Detroit Free Press.

Edible nests of swiftlets are found in the Malay archipelago, Australia and many of the Pacific islands. In northern Borneo certain caves inhabited by these swiftlets produce $25,000 worth of nests every year and show no diminution in the quantity, despite systematic robbery for seven generations.—Exchange.

Knew Just How.

Many years ago in Paris, at the first presentation of a tragedy that had for its closing scene the murder of a Swedish king which had taken place nearly half a century earlier, all went well till the murder scene came on, when a very dignified old gentleman in the stage box called out angrily:

"Absurd! They've got it all wrong!"

The manager himself heard this plain spoken comment, and, being naturally disturbed by so sweeping a condemnation, he sought out the critic and politely begged to know what fault he had to find with it.

"Why, my good sir," cried the old man, with an air of authority, "the whole grouping of the scene is incorrect! You have made them kill the king to the right of the door, whereas we murdered him on the left!"

Barbarous Tattooing.

Formerly the Marquesans had such a barbarous manner of doing their tattoo work that it often took nearly six months to heal that which had been done in a single day. They covered the whole body of the males with crudely imitated rough designs, circles, curves and many designs of small work, including round and angular spots, even to the finger nails and the top of the head. Thus, beginning at virility, some were upward of thirty years old before their tattooing was completed. Marquesan tattooing was perhaps more remarkable in appearance than that of any other primitive race.

Durable.

The admiration which Bob felt for his Aunt Margaret included all her attributes.

"I don't care much for plain teeth like mine, Aunt Margaret," said Bob one day after a long silence, during which he had watched her in laughing conversation with his mother. "I wish I had some copper-toed ones like yours."—Youth's Companion.

Close.

"What sort of chap is this man Skinner?"

"He's the sort of chap who wouldn't think of offering you a match to light your cigar unless he were sure you had another cigar in your pocket."

Mercenary.

He—You used to say there was something about me you liked. She—Yes, but you've spent it all now.

Limited.

"Why did you slap your baby sister's face?"

"'Cause th' rest uv 'er was wrapped up."

Duty is duty, irrespective of its result.—Ninomiya Sontoku.

GERMAN PEOPLE STARVE ALREADY

The Hague, July 9.—During a debate on the food situation at the Thursday evening session of the Berlin City Council, the Socialists complained of the inequality and inadequacy of the distribution of food under the mass feeding scheme. Councillor Mommsen declared that no resident of Berlin was yet starving. This elicited a sharp contradiction. Municipal President Weber maintained there was no question of underfeeding yet. (Cries of strong dissent from the Socialists.)

The Socialist Councillor, Hoffman, said that he himself had been a patient at the Rudolph Virchow Hospital for months, and knew how seriously the dietary had been reduced. Herr Hoffman demanded that President von Batocki of the Food Regulation Board should be told that sufficient food was available, but that the method of distribution was all wrong and that the residents of Berlin would stand it no longer.

The population of Cologne is excited over the municipality's announcement that mass feeding has been postponed indefinitely, some say for six weeks, owing to the lack of potatoes.

The so-called Goulash-cannon travelling kitchens are entirely insufficient, and are besieged from early morning by crowds of hungry persons, while housewives go dinnerless, The Vorwaerts says.

JUDGE PRICE DIES VERY SUDDENLY

Judge Price, Kingston, died suddenly about 2:30 Friday morning from heart failure. His death came as a cruel surprise to family and friends, as it was wholly unexpected. He retired Thursday night in splendid spirits. As usual, he spent the evening with his family, and all commented on the fact that he seemed to be feeling unusually well.

Shortly after two o'clock in the morning the judge awakened his daughter, Miss Price, being in much distress from his heart. She telephoned for Howard S. Folger and family and for a doctor, but before they arrived he had passed away. Mr. Folger and family, who had left him only a few hours before, were grief-stricken to find him lying cold in death.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS ON BENCH.

Judge Price spent over thirty-five years on the bench, retiring in the latter part of 1913. He was an excellent judge, learned in the law, kindly and discerning. He always tempered justice with mercy, and, being a keen student of human nature, he rarely made a mistake in those to whom he gave an opportunity to forget the past. His judgments were invariably sound, and it was a rare thing for an appeal to be taken and a rarer thing for it to be allowed.

Aalsmeer, Holland, is noted for its strawberries and the clipped box tree. In the rich peaty soil box trees grow in every size and shape.

THE OFFICE OF HIGH COMMISSIONER

London despatches announce that Sir George Perley is on his way home to enjoy a well earned vacation. While he is in this country—and he bids fair to remain here—the whole question of a permanent appointment as High Commissioner will be discussed. Sir George Foster is the locum tenens during Sir George Perley's absence from England.

The chances are that neither of the Sir Georges will get the job for keeps. Sir George Foster vows that he does not want it, which is probably true; and Sir George Perley never expected to do more than warm the place for a little while until the real thing came along. In fact, Sir George Perley is the official chair-warmer for the Borden Government. He is a safe man. There is no danger of his burning any chair he sits on. The chair will be there ready for its permanent occupant when the time comes. Consequently Sir George Perley has at one time or another been Acting Minister for everybody in the Cabinet. As a second fiddler he is hard to beat. The consummation of his vicarious career occurred when he was sent to London as High Commissioner pro tem; his colleagues being fully confident that he would not set the Thames on fire or create any disturbance that might mean his continuance in the office.

Possible candidates for the position are plentiful enough. Without half trying I can mention three—Premier Borden, the Honorable Bob Rogers and Major-General Sir Sam Hughes. There is also a dark horse who can brush them all aside and have it if he likes—I mean the man behind the Throne—Baron Shaughnessy. If the Baron's aspirations lead to a country gentleman's life in England, with a town house, a seat in the House of Lords, the High Commissionership for Canada to put an edge on his importance, and ultimately a tomb in Westminster Abbey, as a builder and supporter of the British Empire—if the Baron wants it, I repeat, he can have it, because the Baron is the

to get away from these alarms and reap a little ease and dignity in the Mother Country, where the noise this fair Canada of ours makes over its politics would be softened by distance. If you asked Sir Robert what he thinks of it right now he would probably reply that it sounds too much like a Sousa march played on the bagpipes to be grateful to a sensitive ear. Besides, Sir Robert cannot fail to have noticed that now is a good time for disappearing. Several of his colleagues have heard the rumblings of the next general election and have sought permanent shelter—Messrs. Codrill and Pelletier on the bench, Nantel on the Railway Commission, Speaker Sproule in the Senate. Besides, quite a few of the rank and file show the same tendency to take care of their health and provide for a rainy day by annexing Government jobs.

The Honorable Bob Rogers is another candidate—perhaps the briskest one of the lot. The Honorable Bob has a business head on him and would probably make the High Commissionership pay for itself instead of being a source of expense as it is now. If the Honorable Bob has not pressed his claims before it is because he preferred to stay in Canada and face any music he was responsible for, thus differing from Major-General Sir Sam, who comes back only when telegraphed for. The way things are going in Manitoba this country has no charms for Bob. Tom Kelly heading for jail and Sir Rodmond Roblin and two of his colleagues trying to keep the mud out of their eyes—it's a sad sight and calculated to draw tears from a harder heart than Bob's. The chances are that after the war, Westminster Hall, built I believe by William Rufus, will have to be reconstructed. The last time I was in England the roof was showing the ravages of time. This is Bob's chance. As High Commissioner he would be right on the spot and would be able to give the Superintendent of Works plenty of good advice, based on his experience with Parliament buildings in Ottawa and Winnipeg. At any rate he would know how to let the contract so the contractor wouldn't lose anything.

Last but not least comes Major-General Sir Sam. What becomes of him depends largely on the report—or reports—of the Duff-Meredith Commission. If the War Lord gets a good white wash for his costly friendship with Colonel John Wesley Allison he may stay at home and lead a khaki election, vice Premier Borden translated. If the report isn't wholly satisfactory Sir Sam may decide that his future lies in England. He may decide it, or his colleagues may decide it for him—in any case they can't lose Sam in any other way than Sam chooses to be lost.

Notes of Provincial Interest

AGRICULTURE.

It is interesting to note that not only Liberal newspapers but organs with a decidedly governmental leaning are from time to time taking up the question of the necessity of some drastic change in the administration of the present Department of Agriculture. The Liberal members in the Provincial House for three successive sessions have done their utmost to persuade the Ontario Government to adopt a more comprehensive policy and to show in their actions that the Baron wants it, I repeat, he can have it, because the Baron is the C.P.R. made flesh, and all he has to do is to take an air line to anything he wants in the gift of the Canadian Government.

Moreover, the Baron is persona grata with the royal family in the shape of the Duke of Connaught, whose honored guest he frequently was at Rideau Hall. Indeed, the Duke was very fond of the Baron, whose percentage of week-ends at Government House averaged twice as many as any other public man's in Canada. If Baron Shaughnessy elects to spend the sunset of his days in England, he will have a glorious time and the entree to exclusive circles which Strathcona never achieved. What's more, he would make as shrewd a High Commissioner as Canada ever had in London, with a wide practical outlook on Canada's needs and resources, not to mention his life long experience in handling the most comprehensive enterprise in the Dominion. The Baron may choose, however, to remain in Canada, until the railway problem is solved in a way that doesn't give the C.P.R. the worst of it. When that last bit is done the Baron may consent to dismiss himself in peace to the larger glories of British politics.

The candidate next in order is Sir Robert Borden, who would have no objection to a landed estate, say in Surrey, and the title of Baron Borden of Nova Scotia standing not only for the province he comes from, but also for the bank in which he is a large shareholder. Sir Robert has a massive, constitutional mind and would much enjoy being an imperial statesman with purple opinions. Sir Robert has no children, and as England has always been generous with peerages for Canadians who had no families to carry on, the title would be an easy matter. Sir Robert is no lover of the strife and clamor of Canadian politics. His is a temperament that desires more placid triumphs. This war has been a great worry to him, especially the Sam Hughes part of it, a thorn in his side which he is obliged to cherish. It is a matter of general comment that the Premier has aged ten years in the last two and that he wears a haunted look. Only his strong sense of duty has kept him at a post which daily increases his burdens. Sir Robert is no quitter—he will go through with it if it kills him—but he would probably welcome the chance adopt a more comprehensive policy and to show by their actions that the importance of agriculture is recognised by the Provincial Cabinet. The present Minister in the Department of Agriculture (Hon. Jas. Duff), although personally a worthy gentleman, is not by any means the man for the post. This is conceded by many Conservatives as well as Liberals throughout the Province. But although dissatisfaction has been publicly expressed on numerous occasions, both in the press and on the platform, the Government persists in standing by its incompetent Minister, thereby condoning the absolute lack of leadership in the Department of which he is the head.

The Toronto "Telegram" (Ind. Con) in a quotation appearing in its editorial columns of July 4th, sums up the situation very accurately. The quotation reads as follows:—

"Ontario has in Hon. J. S. Duff as good a Minister of Agriculture as Ontario ever had; and Ontario never had a Minister of Agriculture who was worth more than $15 a week."

The "Telegram" further remarks that "Ontario's Agricultural Leadership has never developed size approaching the size of the opportunity that has beckoned, and still beckons, to every Minister of Agriculture."

The Liberals, as yet in opposition, have been showing leadership in connection with agriculture in the legislature and a sympathetic willingness to study the question outside the House. The agricultural community is taking note of the attitude of the two parties; and there are indications of such a slide at the next general election that the Department of Agriculture, as at present constituted will slip into deserved oblivion.

THE NEW LIBERALISM.

Mr. Rowell's great policy of social reform has been termed "Aggressive Liberalism." Aggressive Liberalism was urgently needed when Mr. Rowell seized the reins of the Liberal chariot and boldly attacked the greatest social evil of our time, the liquor traffic. During the contest which has just taken place in North Perth, the government has been whining that they have received no credit or support from the Temperance people to offset the antagonism of the Liquor Interests over the passing, by the government, of the Ontario Temperance Act. The Temperance people evidently remember what Mr. Rowell was the man to raise the Temperance issue and force the government's hand, and who therefore should have the credit for this outstanding measure.

Constructive legislation for the benefit of the masses is Mr. Rowell's aim; and he and his supporters are working diligently to discover the best means to attain the end. The Liberal Leader hopes that his visit to England will equip him with a fund of useful information on which to draw; in his endeavor to grapple with social problems in this country. The just demand of the working man for consideration has been already met and acknowledged by Mr. Rowell in his work in connection with the Workmen's Compensation Act. His proposal to institute Old Age Pensions and Unemployment Insurance is being enthusiastically received by industrial Ontario.

The Liberal Leader recognizes not only the need for increased agricultural development, but also the fact that the care of the human element in production is of paramount importance.

would serve no useful only distress those concerned. When a man is away, that fact is overlooked, printing of the fact misrepresents a bad reputation their market value. The Great Chain

The "great chain," the length of which was two and one-half miles and one foot long, each link weighing 140 pounds, was stretched across the Hudson river at West Point on May 1, 1812. The British warships vented the chain across the river. The total weight of the chain was 180 tons, and it was 450 yards long. Parts of the chain are preserved at West Point.

HUN SUBMARINE MAKES TRIP TO AMERICAN PORT

BALTIMORE, Md., July 9.—The world's first submarine merchantman, the German underwater liner Deutschland, anchored below Baltimore to-night, after voyaging safely across the Atlantic, passing the allied blockading squadrons and eluding enemy cruisers watching for her off the American coast. She carries mail, a cargo of 750 tons of costly chemicals and dyestuffs, and a message from Emperor William to President Wilson and is to carry back home a cargo of nickel and crude rubber sorely needed by the German army.

The Deutschland carries, mounted in her conning tower, two small guns, of about three-inch calibre. No torpedo tubes are visible. She is capable of submerging in less than 2 minutes. On the surface of the water the submarine has a speed of from 2 to 3 knots an hour more than the average merchant steamer.

TRIP IN FIFTEEN DAYS.

Fifteen days out from Bremerhaven to Baltimore, the submarine reached safely between Virginia Capes at 1:45 o'clock this morning.

Three hours later the big submarine started up the bay under her own power with the German merchant flag flying, convoyed by the Timmons. She was making more than twelve knots and could have docked in Baltimore to-night, but arrangements had been made for receiving her with formal ceremonies to-morrow and her captain was ordered to wait in the lower harbor. He and his crew of 29 men remained aboard their craft.

IGNORED CUSTOMS OFFICIALS.

Regarding his vessel as a merchantman subject to no unusual restrictions, the skipper, whose name is said to be Captain Kairig, went up the Chesapeake without waiting to notify local customs and quarantine authorities of his presence. He was five hours away before Norman Hamilton, collector of Norfolk-Newport News heard the news, and started on his trail aboard the coast guard cutter Onondaga. At last reports to-night the cutter had not apprehended the submarine and it is understood that she merely was ordered out to keep the strange craft under surveillance as a neutrality precaution.

Little was known here to-night about what happened during the epoch-making cruise across the ocean. None of the submarine's crew had landed and the agents of her owners had received only meagre reports.

The boat is consigned to A. Schumacher and Company, local agents of the North German Lloyd Line, and her cargo to the Eastern Forwarding Company, a concern said to have been organized within the past few weeks, especially to handle the business of underwater lines. The latter company has a pier and warehouse, in which are stored the goods to be loaded on the Deutschland for her return trip.

PERILS OF GASOLINE.

When Air Mixes With the Vapor, Then Look Out For Trouble.

Fatalities on account of gasoline fires are on the increase, which leads the Journal of the American Medical Association to remark that, "in harmony with experiences respecting human ways and human indifference, the increasing use of gasoline and other liquid fuels which are dangerous because of their ready inflammability will probably increase the number of accidents which cause loss of life as well as great damage to property. Miscellaneous hazards in the use of the inflammable products exist which lead to leakage of those volatile substances and their ignition by spontaneous and unsuspected methods, as well as those due to obvious carelessness."

"A feature, however, which is not readily comprehended and which is a serious source of danger is the fact that gasoline or gasoline vapor burns, but a mixture of the vapor and air is highly explosive." The bureau of mines in a technical paper by G. A. Burrell illustrates the situation in these words:

"If one takes the cover off a full pail of tightly inclosed gasoline and applies a match to the surface the gasoline will flare up and burn as long as the gasoline lasts. On the other hand, if one puts a few drops of gasoline in a small tightly inclosed pail, waits a few minutes and then introduces a flame or an electric spark, violent explosion will most likely result. In the first place, the vapor burns as fast as it comes from the gasoline and mixes with the oxygen of the air; in the second, the oil vaporizes in the pail and mixes uniformly with the air in it to form an explosive mixture, and on ignition explodes."

"Consequently, when one hears of a disastrous gasoline explosion one may be sure that it resulted from the mixing of the vapor from the gasoline with air in the proportions necessary to form an explosive mixture."

"The behavior of illuminating gas, which burns quietly when liberated alone, but explodes when a mixture with air is heated, is quite analogous. The public has been slow to appreciate these distinctions, and hence they deserve emphasis."

"At ordinary temperatures air will hold from 5 to 28 per cent of gasoline vapor. As gasoline vapor is about three times as heavy as air, in a room containing a mixture of the vapor with air the vapor is found in largest proportion near the floor. According to the government experts there is needed only a small proportion of gasoline vapor to render air explosive—1.4 cubic feet of the vapor to 97.5 cubic feet of air. One gallon of gasoline can under ideal conditions render 2,100 cubic feet of air explosive."

"A dangerous feature of gasoline vapor is that it may travel a considerable distance from the gasoline and there be ignited, the flash traveling back to the container of the liquid and causing a roaring fire in a few seconds."

WHITE OF THE MOON.

What Causes Fair Luna, In Its Color, to Rival Pure Snow?

The moon has no light of its own and shines through being illuminated by the sun. What sort of surface must the moon have to reflect the light so whitely as it does? This question is put forcibly in a letter to Nature from J. Evershed of Srinagar, Kashmir, who describes the moon as far whiter and more brilliant than the snow clad summits of the Himalayans when these are still lighted by the sun. He writes:

"Why does the moon appear so white if it is composed of rocks similar in reflecting power to those on the earth? The rock surface of the moon should reflect far less light than the cloudy surfaces of Venus and Jupiter, and it would be of interest if those who know would explain the apparent whiteness of the moon as seen in daylight."

"A direct comparison of the moon with terrestrial rock surfaces illuminated by sunlight is possibly to some extent vitiated by the superimposed blue light scattered by the intervening air, which may affect the color of the moon. Yet it is very difficult to believe that this can convert the grays and browns of rock surfaces into an almost pure white."

"On several occasions in this valley I have compared the waning moon, setting behind the Pir Panjal mountains, and, of course, in full sunlight, with extensive snow fields. These snows are perhaps fifty miles distant, and there is a considerable amount of blue scattered light superposed on the snow, although less than on the moon. Also the light absorbed by the atmosphere is approximately and may be exactly the same for each if one considers the whole path of the light from sun to snow and thence to the observer. When the air is transparent enough to see the moon clearly it appears to me to be distinctly whiter than the snows, which seem dull and yellowish in comparison."

Mr. Evershed throws out the suggestion that the moon's surface may be covered with ice.

Wheat Is Very Ancient.

The growing of wheat has so long been a principal occupation with man that its geographical origin is unknown. The Egyptians claim it originated with Isis, while the Chinese claim to have received the seed direct as a gift from heaven. The belief that it originated in the valleys of the Euphrates and the Tigris is more generally accepted than any other. The most ancient languages mention wheat, and it has been found by the archaeologists in the kitchens of the prehistoric inhabitants of the Swiss lake region. It is generally agreed that at the lowest estimate wheat has been a faithful servant of mankind for 6,000 years.

The undersea liner, Mr. Hilken understands, is about 315 feet long and thirty feet beam, and is propelled by two great Diesel oil engines. She is as large, if not larger than any of the German naval submarines, and carries 750 tons dead weight or cargo. As to details of her construction, Mr. Hilken said he was lacking in information.

Mr. Hilken is an American and his firm has been in business here, operating ships under the American flag, since 1824. To whom the Deutschland's cargo is consigned, Mr. Hilken said he did not know, but he believed it was going to a number of concerns badly in need of dyestuffs.

When she will return and whether it is planned to have her make regular transatlantic trips, Mr. Hilken refused to discuss.

"This project was conceived," he said, "by German commercial interests who wanted to reopen trade with the United States. We need some of Germany's commodities and Germany needs some of ours. It is a purely commercial proposition and that is all there is to it."

Six months ago came first reports that Germany was preparing to put into the transatlantic trade a line of submarines. London cable reports told of the organization of a company to inaugurate such a service, and English experts were quoted as saying they felt no surprise at the announcement of the plans.

At Schramberg, in the Black forest, there is a respectable alarm clock that warned sleepers it was time to get up when Charles I. was king of England. This was made in 1680, and it is deemed a remarkable piece of workmanship. In form it resembles a lantern wherein is a lighted candle, the wick of which is automatically clipped every minute by a pair of scissors. The candle is slowly pushed upward by a spring, which also controls the mechanism of the clock, and at the required hour of waking an alarm is sounded, and at the same time the movable sides of the lantern fall, and the room is flooded with light.

SYNOPSIS.

Dudley Larnigan, district attorney, because of his fight on the vice and liquor trusts, is killed by an agent of a secret society, the committee of fifteen. The fight is continued by his son, Bruce, who is elected district attorney. When Larnigan saves the children of one of the conspirators this man agrees to expose the trust and is murdered. Dorothy Maxwell, whose father is head of the insurance trust, over the dictaphone hears of a plot to kill Larnigan with whom she is in love. She warns him, he escapes, and two more of the conspirators are killed. When Bruce Larnigan goes to Chicago to fight the grain trust he is assaulted and thrown overboard. He is rescued by his brother Tom, who takes up the fight. Dodson, head of the grain trust, fearing exposure, kills himself. Tom Larnigan opens a fight on the textile trust. Ayres, the head of the trust, in an effort to kill Tom, kills his own son. Tom, Ben Travers and Stevens go after the railroad monopoly. An attempt is made to wreck the special train on which Tom and Ben travel. When Kitty Rockford, the railroad president's daughter is saved by Tom and Ben the railroad president declares he'll help expose the grafters. The conspirators next plan to involve this country in war in order to sell munitions. Bean, an inventor, makes a machine to blow up an interned warship. Tom Larnigan gets Bean drunk. He gives away the plot, and Carnegie, another of the graft conspirators, is killed.

EIGHTH EPISODE

"Old King Coal"

JAMES FRANCIS DWYER, Author of "The Spotted Panther," "The White Waterfall," and "The Blue Moon"

DUNN—this sort of nonsense has got to stop!" said Stanford Stone, with a grim meaning in his tone. "Every time these Larnigans escape from your traps. I'm beginning to think that you forget that I'm in a position to enforce the orders I give you."

"Well—I got an idea," said Dunn. "It looks good. Bean's sore—he's afraid he won't get any more money. He thinks Tom Larnigan put over something pretty raw, and he's got it in for him. So here's the lay out. Bean says that if he can get into the Larnigans' flat he can fix things so that no one can pretend to be asleep."

They put their plan into execution and, as they expected, they soon heard the voices of the members of the syndicate—the survivors of the original fifteen. Stone spoke first.

"Weisner—you needn't worry," he said. "I saw Larnigan just now—met him as he came from the station. He's taken his mother and his brother down to the country. He explained to me that he wanted them to be where it was safe and quiet, because he had to go down to Pennsylvania!"

"And you'll keep him away, I suppose," said Weisner, with a sneer. "Me—I don't trust you or your arrangements, Stone! You've had plenty of chances at these Larnigans, and you've messed up every one of them! Let him come, say I! I've got ways of taking care of him if he turns up!"

The two girls couldn't hear all of the conversation. It was Weisner's voice, heavy and powerful, that was most plainly audible; Stone, from a more highly developed sense of caution, pitched his tone low, so that only an occasional word that he uttered was clear and distinct. And so the two girls did not realize that Tom would be in peril even before he left New York; they thought that for him the danger would begin to be acute when he reached the coal fields. As soon as they could they stole out and managed to get away unobserved.

"Suppose we went down?" suggested Dorothy. "Down to Pennsylvania? I don't believe Tom realizes the dangers he will face down there—and we might save his life! I'm sure we could be of some use."

"I'm willing," said Kitty, eagerly.

Tom, meanwhile, had gone unsuspectingly toward his flat. He meant to accept Stone's invitation. Stone could, he knew, give him valuable information as to conditions in the coal fields, and he had offered to do so. He did not see the spy who lurked in the lower hallway of his apartment house; it was with the utmost unconcern that he inserted his key in the door.

He stopped for a moment, holding the door open with his foot, and bent down to stroke a cat that had rubbed against his leg. The cat, he guessed, must belong to his neighbors. Then he straightened up, and pushed high prices in the cities, were chargeable to the strikers, and this had done much to inflame public opinion against the men. Tom, on the other hand, was sure that Weisner was resorting to an old trick, and holding back great reserves of coal.

So he was making his hunt off the beaten path, looking daily, for some evidence that would support his belief, since he knew that a guess, no matter how close it might prove to be to the truth, would be useless against such enemies.

And one day, on a specially built siding, he found a long string of coal cars, fully loaded. There was proof of the most glaring sort that he had been right, for, across the track, a shanty had been built by tracklayers—right in the path of the loaded cars! Tom began at once to take notes and photographs—and in this occupation Weisner surprised him.

"Who are you? What right have you got to come butting in?" asked Tom, angrily, when Weisner began to abuse him.

"I'll tell you who I am—and in a hurry!" said Weisner, with an oath. "I'm Weisner—the boss of this whole country, and don't you forget it!"

Tom's anger was too strong for his discretion. In a moment he and Weisner were grappling, in a primitive, savage combat. Tom, with a fair field, could have killed his opponent, but some of Weisner's henchmen hurried to his assistance, and in a few minutes Tom, unconscious and bound, was thrown into the tool shanty. Weisner, raging, went up the hill along which the siding ran, and stopped at the top, where the first car stood. Suddenly an evil light came into his eyes.

"He wants the coal moved, does he?" he snarled. "Well—moved it shall be!"

At once he sprang to the car, uncoupled it, and began to try to move it, so that, getting on the grade, it would roll down upon the shanty by the force of gravity.

And at the same moment Dorothy

Ancient Delphi
 Ancient Delphi was a city in Greece on the southern slope of Mount Parnassus.

So here's the lay out. Dunn says that if he can get into the Larnigan's flat he can fix things so that anyone who goes inside the front door will never come out again! I say—it's worth while. Let him make good."

Dunn went off to find Bean. And an hour or so later he telephoned to Stone.

"Bean's been there—and you never saw a prettier job!" he reported, enthusiastically. "He's got the whole place wired—and every wire leads to some explosive!"

"Fine work!" said Stone. "I believe you've got them this time, Dunn. Well—we got Dudley Larnigan when he was district attorney of New York, and it would be a strange thing if we couldn't put these two sons of his out of the running!"

Stone was smiling as he made his way to the home of Roger Maxwell, head of the Insurance Trust and the father of Dorothy Maxwell, the girl whom both Stone and Bruce Larnigan loved. Dorothy alone knew the truth concerning Stone, and, though she loved Bruce, and hated Stone, she was constrained to silence because she knew that her father was in Stone's power; that he was deeply involved in the criminal machinations of the gang that the Larnigans had sworn to run to earth. Stone had threatened, more than once, that if she betrayed him he would see to it that her father was ruined, and she had, therefore, had to be content with doing what she could in secret to help Bruce. And in this, for some time, she had had the aid of Kitty Rockford, her best friend, whose betrothal to Tom Larnigan Dorothy expected to be announced at any time.

Dorothy saw Stone come in; she knew that already a number of other men, prominent in the Graft trust, were in the house.

"We'd better keep our ears open, Kitty," she told her chum. "I think those men are planning some new deviltry."

"I heard Mr. Weisner talking about interference with his business," said Kitty. "He said that if any outsiders came skulking around the coal mines they'd better look out—that there was trouble enough there already without bringing in any more from outside."

"They'll talk in the library," said Dorothy. "If we slip in there now and go into the little alcove, we can curl up in that big settee. If they find us we guessed, must belong to his neighbors. Then he straightened up, and pushed the door open. But just then a mouse ran across the doorsill; the cat sprang after it, in hot pursuit. Instantly there was a blinding flash; a deafening roar, and a great explosion hurled Tom half way down the stairs. He was bruised and shaken, but he was not seriously hurt; no bones were broken. And, even as he picked himself up the spy, hearing the explosion, ran off to report that he had walked into the trap.

Stone was appalled and astonished when Tom came, as he had promised to do. But he was able to conceal his astonishment and his dismay.

"You must spend the night," he told Tom. "You can get an early morning train—you might as well have one more night of comfort. I'm afraid you'll find it pretty rough down in the coal fields. The hotels are poor, and everything is upset and disorganized by the strike, so that it will be even worse than usual."

Tom agreed, and Stone, after Tom had retired, sent for Dunn.

"He's fooled us again," he said, bitterly. "I don't know how—and I don't care! But—I've arranged a last chance for you! He's in this apartment, asleep! You can get through the window—and this time take no chances!"

"Suppose I'm caught—it's murder you're asking me to do!" gasped Dunn, growing pale.

"You've done it before—and I still have the proofs!" said Stone, fiercely. "Which would you rather do—have me hand those proofs to the prosecutor, with the certainty that you'll be convicted, or take the chance that you won't be caught? Who is going to catch you? There's no one to give the alarm except myself!"

Dunn hesitated. But he knew that Stone held the whip hand.

"I'll do it," said Dunn, grimly.

"All right," said Stone. "There's the way you can get in."

And at once he went downstairs and notified the hall boy that he had seen a burglar, trying to get into his rooms! Treachery was the very breath of life to Stone.

"I caught a burglar for you, Mr. Stone," said Tom, when he saw Stone returning, with two or three of the employees of the house. "He's tied up in there!"

"Good work!" said Stone. The man had missed his vocation; anyone who had seen him then, and had known, too, what his real plan would have been, would have been convinced, of that. In him a great actor was lost to the stage. He concealed his fury, his dismay at the sight of Tom Larnigan, who had once more escaped. Tom had been too much for Dunn, that was all.

Down in the coal country Dorothy and Kitty saw much of the misery inevitably attendant upon a strike. The miners were grim and determined; certain elements among them had begun to riot and to try to destroy the property of the mining companies. The militia and the state police suppressed all violence ruthlessly, but the temper of the men was growing uglier, and there could be no doubt that, sooner or later, they would organize and seek to settle the matters in a pitched battle.

But the two girls, although they saw much that was of vital interest, did not, for a long time, discover where Tom Larnigan was, nor what he was the force of gravity.

And at the same moment Dorothy Maxwell, who chanced to be within hearing, understood his purpose, and suspecting that Tom was in the shanty, ran desperately toward it. The car gained momentum; Dorothy saw that she would be too late. But Kitty Rockford, nearer the bottom of the hill, understood Dorothy's frantic gestures.

She ran toward the shanty, not knowing what she would see, but realizing that there was some danger for some one inside, since she could see the car racing down. And, just in time, she dragged Tom outside—and a moment later the car ploughed through the frail structure, smashing it to kindling wood.

The two girls freed Tom. And then they saw a group of men gathered on the hill about half way up. Tom went up; he returned, sober faced, in a few moments.

"Weisner's foot caught as he started the car—caught in the brake," he said. "He was dragged along and killed."

Tom could not avert much of the trouble that followed, but Weisner's death and the government action that followed Tom's report brought about a speedy settlement of the strike. And one more name was crossed off the original list of fifteen.

A POLITICAL "BOOM."

How the Idea of the Expression Came to Its First User.

The word "boom," as applied to a political movement, so far as known, was first used by the editor of a Republican newspaper in St. Louis, Mo., pending the return of General U. S. Grant from the trip around the world undertaken by him in 1876, immediately following his retirement from the presidency of the United States.

The term was used so persistently and so cleverly that it soon began to lodge in popular thought and to take on the meaning which the editor intended to convey when he declared that the movement looking to a third term for Grant was "booming," or when he employed the invention as a noun and spoke of "the Grant boom."

The idea had come to him from a common expression used by the people along the Mississippi river. When that stream was at flood tide and sweeping everything before it it was said to be "booming." The St. Louis editor aimed to convey the thought that the movement for the nomination of Grant for the presidency in 1880 was like the onward sweep of a great river under such conditions, and therefore a boom.

The term soon came into general use and has been applied in the United States ever since, alike to spontaneous and preconcerted or organized movements looking to the placing of some person in an office of importance, not necessarily, but generally, the presidency.—Christian Science Monitor.

DANCES AND DIES.

The May Fly Lives Only a Day, but Has a Gay Time While He Lasts.

Foolish insect! He lives only one day and spends the greater part of it dancing. You've doubtless been a guest at one of their dances, held over a stream on a warm summer's evening. You've seen the insects in swarms, leaping up and down in fancy steps and intricate figures. You've attended the dance of the May flies.

There is a general supposition that all May flies live only for a day. As a matter of fact, they will live several days if the atmosphere isn't too dry. Then again they may survive only through a single night. Even this impending fate cannot stop them from dancing.

This brief lived characteristic, however, applies only to the winged existence of the insect. Before they grow wings they pass through several stages, from the larvae, which live in water, through several molts and transformations. So while it is a May fly only for a short time it exists for a longer time, and perhaps we can pardon it if it dances during the brief period it lives in the air.

The fly has two pairs of wings, one pair much larger than the other, and two or three long, bristle-like tails. Its mouth is small and soft and not made for eating. The May fly has no time to eat. He's too busy dancing.

A GERMAN ARMY CORPS.

What It Means to Move and Feed and Form In Fighting Line.

In the nonmilitary mind there is only a vague idea as to the space required for an army corps.

According to a German writer, a German army corps consists of 41,000 men, 14,000 horses and 2,400 vehicles, including the cannon. Such a body of men and their belongings on a single road make a procession about thirty miles long.

Even when in fairly close touch with the enemy the length of a corps is about fifteen miles, and when the front detachments become engaged in a battle it is five or six hours before the men in the rear get into action to assist them.

An army of ten corps would fight on a front about thirty-seven miles long, and a man who undertook to walk from one wing to the other would require twelve or fourteen hours to do it.

An army corps consumes nearly 300,000 pounds of food a day, about 100,000 pounds for the men and 200,000 pounds for the horses. Even under the most favorable conditions it requires a train of 150 wagons to bring up a day's food.

"Chewing tea comes from Siam," said a traveler. "They call it mieng. It is in a plug, like chewing tobacco, and it has a villainous smell. This smell is due to the fermentation it has undergone. The tea that the Siamese employ for chewing purposes is a very coarse, rank plant. It is gathered like ordinary tea, but the leaves after being compressed into plugs are buried for fifteen days. They ferment during

LEARN TO DECIDE QUICKLY.

It May Often Prove to Be a Great Help In Business Matters.

In the American Magazine is the story of a successful business man who attributes his success largely to his faculty for making quick decisions.

"Once decided, you ought not to waste time. If a man decides rightly then he has a running start on rivals who hesitate. If he decides wrongly then he has discovered his blunder, backed up and is ready to start on even terms with the hesitating rival, for a man of decision can decide he is wrong as quickly as he can decide he is right. Also, in a great number of cases, the man who decides quickly may fail to decide the best way and still carry it through to success and even convince others he was right all the time. This has happened to me many times in cases where there were a number of ways in which a thing might be done.

"While we blunder inevitably I believe our batting average is higher than that of timid ones, and the rewards much greater. I do not think we blunder inevitably I believe our batting average is higher than that of timid ones, and the rewards much greater. I do not think heart and betray the confidence of one so fair, concluding with a peroration of such pathos as to melt the court to tears. The counsel for the defendant then rose, and after paying the lady the compliment of admitting that it was impossible not to assent to the encomiums lavished upon her face he added that nevertheless he felt bound to ask the jury not to forget that she wore a wooden leg. Then he sat down. The important fact of which the fair plaintiff's counsel was unaware, was presently established, and the jury, feeling rather sheepish at their tears, assessed damages at the smallest amount.

FRESH CURTAINS.

How to Make Home Laundering Really Effectual.

AN EXPERT SPEAKS UP.

After Twenty Years' Experience With Window Hangings, a Professional Tells Us Just How to Manage Unruly Frames and Sopping Wet Curtains.

"Many women," says an expert, "think that the proper way to mount a curtain on a stretcher is to first fasten down each of the four corners and then to stretch the edges into shape by pulling from the corners.

"This is entirely a mistake, and curtains mounted in this way are almost sure to have the mesh broken or torn in several places, even if the pattern and the scalloped edges dry to look straight and even.

"In mounting a lace curtain over a stretcher, one should always begin at the middle point of the long border edge. Slip this over the pin at the center on the top edge of the frame; then, working from the center, first to the right and then to the left, slip the successive scallops over pins until the entire long border edge is attached to the pins on the upper bar of the frame.

"The curtain is now hanging with its unpatterned edge falling loosely downward. The next step is to attach the bottom end of the curtain to the frame pins. This usually has the same border as the long, patterned edge. In fastening it to the stretcher work downward from one of the top corners until you have all the patterned edge attached to the pins.

"Now notice how many inches on the top bar of the frame are covered by the long border edge and how many inches at the side and then adjust the remaining two sides of the frame to correspond exactly in the number of inches. Fasten the other short edge of the curtain, which will be the top edge when hung, and lastly fasten the other long edge to the frame pins.

"The last edge may have to be puckered a little to make it fit over the pins, but the puckering will not show when the curtains are dry, and, what is more to the point, the edge will not pull down after it is dry.

"One other thing that should be emphasized is that the long border or patterned edge of lace curtains should always be dried at the top of the frame. Removing the curtains from the stretcher after they are dry requires some care. One should not try to take the edges from the pins until the frame has been sufficiently loosened, so that there will be no strain on the delicate mesh; otherwise threads are almost sure to be strained and broken.

"A curtain stretcher to be entirely satisfactory should have movable pins and should be made of well seasoned wood. Stretchers having stationary pins may or may not have the pins placed at intervals which will match the scallops in the particular curtains one wishes to clean, and unless they happen to match exactly the size of the scallops it is not possible to dry the scallops in good shape. Stretchers which have movable pins can be perfectly adjusted to either large or small scallops."

THE GERMAN FARMER.

His Interests Carefully Looked After by His Government.

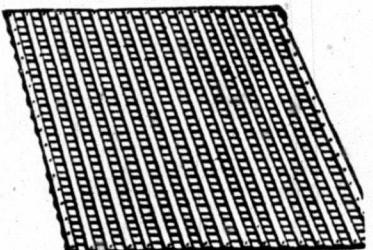

The interests of the farmer are as carefully conserved in Germany as those of the city dweller, for the farmer is a most important factor in preparedness. The German government has paid out hundreds of millions of dollars in subsidies for the farmer. It has subsidized an army of chemists to increase the fertility of his fields. A model system of inland waterways, run in collaboration with the railways, assures him cheap transportation. In times of stress special railroad rates are granted to save him from disaster. Expert personal advice is furnished for his smallest problems, and care is taken to insure a ready market for his products. Co-operative associations provide for the small farmer the most modern machinery at a moderate rental. If he has to borrow money on mortgage or to make a short term loan to get in his crop a system of land bank associations assures him easy terms. He pays between 3 and 4 per cent for his money on mortgage and about 5 per cent on short loans.

The American farmer who can obtain money at double the German rate is lucky. We permit a chaotic system of distribution whereby the farmer gets only a third of the value of his product, the rest being swallowed up in transportation charges and by the numerous middlemen.

The result is that while Germany has doubled her agricultural production in twenty years, with virtually no increase in acreage, we have been declining steadily to agricultural unpreparedness. The German farmer's acre of wornout soil has been made to yield twice the product of our young field.—Century Magazine.

Lath Shades In Plant Growing.

It is often necessary to shade seedlings and small or delicate plants from sun and wind. Among the best devices is a shade made from laths, as shown herewith. Preferably the outside pieces are thicker than ordinary laths, so as to hold the nails well and to prevent splitting. The easiest way to make such shades is to place the laths on a smooth, level floor, touching each other and with the frame pieces on the outsides. Then the first crosspiece at one end is laid on the laths and nails are driven through each alternate lath. Then laths are laid across those on the floor and parallel to the end piece just nailed until the opposite end is reached.

The next move is to nail each alternate one of these latter laths at its ends to the crosspieces beneath. The last piece to be nailed is the thick crosspiece at the opposite end from the

SOWING TIMOTHY AND CLOVER.

Unquestionably the most ideal plan of sowing timothy and clover is to put in the nurse crop with a drill after properly preparing the soil and at the same time using a grass seeder attachment. When this plan is followed the grass seed will be scattered between the grain rows and the disk drill will cover the seed sufficiently, but it will not bury it deeply enough so that the plants will never get through the surface. There is some advantage in having grass seed come up between the rows of grain, because in that case the soil from which the timothy and clover draw their nourishment is not so thoroughly dried out as it is in the immediate vicinity of the rows of grain.

In some cases the plan is followed of harrowing drilled grain at least once after sowing, the theory of this being to more completely distribute the grass seed and, furthermore, to uncover that part of it that may have become embedded too deeply and thereby insure a more uniform growth. In any event, let it be understood that more mistakes are made in undercovering grass seed than in covering it too deeply. A few days of warm weather in the spring will dry out the surface half inch of soil, and no plant can germinate in a dry seed bed. On general principles we believe in getting it down where the soil is moist, and moist long enough so that there is plenty of time to insure germination.—Iowa Homestead.

Kitchen Helps.

In order to keep lettuce fresh for an indefinite time put the head in a glass containing water and place it in the icebox or some other cool, dark place. The roots will absorb the water, which should be changed daily, and keep the lettuce fresh and crisp.

If you would save your hands from unsightly vegetable stains always peel or scrape potatoes, turnips, etc., under warm running water.

When your grocer sends you hard lemons and you want them for immediate use let them stand for a few hours in water, and they will soon become soft and juicy.

A home "cold storage" for eggs may be made by placing two inches of wood ashes in the bottom of a tin pail. In this stand on the small end as many fresh eggs as will fit easily without letting them touch. Over these sift a couple of inches of ashes and adjust another layer of eggs. When the pail is full cover it tightly and place in a cool place, and the eggs will keep perfectly for an indefinite time.

On Ironing Day.

One will find it a great help on ironing day to have a goodly supply of clothes hangers at hand. As soon as a garment is ironed slip it over a hanger. Each hanger will hold a number of the same kind of garments, and in putting the clothes away all that is necessary is to place the hangers in the closet. In this way many pieces do not have to be handled twice and wrinkled clothes are avoided.

Strawberry Shortcake For Two.

last piece to be nailed is the thick crosspiece at the opposite end from the starting point. Through this each alternate lath below should be nailed. All that is then necessary is to overturn the frame, when the unnailed pieces will drop out and leave the shade as in the drawing.

This way of managing is easier than to measure the distance between laths as each one is nailed. It is a good plan to use nails one-fourth or one-half inch longer than will go through the wood and to clinch the ends by bending them over by blows with a hammer. To do this the frame must be turned over and placed on an anvil, bench or some other solid body.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Why Raise Live Stock?

Because live stock makes it possible for a man to put a large value into a small compass and to save in freight on sending things to market.

Because by the help of live stock we are enabled to sell at a high price the carbonaceous products of the farm, which mean nothing in fertility lost, but which are always in demand in the markets.

Because the manure made by the live stock is a valuable byproduct, which not only puts back into the land the mineral plant food that has been taken out, but adds an additional element of carbon in cellular form, which decays and affects the plant foods in the soil in so decaying.

I had three of the best doctors I could get but it just seemed nothing was going to help me. I had almost given up. I thought I would never be any better and was willing to give up and die rather than suffer as I was. A neighbor of mine told me of Dr. Pierce's wonderful remedies and I decided to use them. My husband bought me six bottles of 'Favorite Prescription.' I had not taken it long until I felt better. In less than six weeks I was out of bed, and in less than six months I was cured and have been well ever since. Do all my own work. I have raised three daughters, two are married and have children. They have used it and they are healthy, so are their children. I am sure it was all on account of my having them use the medicine."

Aquatic Food Plants.

The collection of aquatic food plants secured in a recent expedition to China are of special interest. These include water chestnuts, water nuts and a number of aquatic bulbs, as well as the water bamboo. The Chinese have mastered through centuries of experiments the process of using swamp lands for the raising of food crops, and their success is believed to point to commercial possibilities for some of our swamp regions where reclamation by drainage is not practicable. The kauba, sometimes called the wild rice or water bamboo, now to be made the subject of experiment, is a vegetable in taste somewhat between grass and asparagus. The swollen stalks of the plant are eaten much like our asparagus. The ordinary bamboo, contrary to the prevailing opinion, is not an aquatic plant, and for successful cultivation calls for fertile and well drained soil.

Making Crops While Trees Grow.

Potatoes are a good previous crop for an apple orchard, says a contributor to the American Agriculturist. I planted my trees forty feet apart each way, then I planted potatoes, cultivating both ways. I like early potatoes best. The fertilizer and cultivation given the potatoes aid the growing trees. When potatoes are dug and removed a cover crop is seeded in the orchard. I like rye and hairy vetch exceedingly well. This cover crop can be plowed under in the spring and planted to beans.

The Land Roller.

There are soils where it would be just about impossible to do good farming without the use of the land roller, the plank drag or some of the other similar implements in this class. On soils which are likely to become cloddy they are very necessary. On those light, porous soils, almost ashy in consistency, they serve the purpose of breaking the earth particles. There are sections where practically every farm is equipped with a land roller, and anywhere from 15 to 30 per cent of all the work done on the corn crop is done with the roller. The plank drag is also in high favor in the corn belt.—Farm Progress.

Hotel Burned.

On Tuesday morning about 3 o'clock the Red Lion Hotel, Newburgh, owned by Mr. Harold Fuller, was totally destroyed by fire. Mr. and Mrs. Fuller had been up very late the night before, preparing eatables for the demonstration on Wednesday, and the fire was probably caused by an overheated chimney. Nothing remains of the hotel and contents, but a pile of brick. Mr. Fuller's loss will be considerable, though he had a reasonable amount of insurance on building and contents.

FIRE AT DESERONTO.

The large plant of the Dominion Hardwood, Limited, manufacturers of woodenware, was totally destroyed by fire at four o'clock Sunday morning. It was a new industry, and had just commenced running in full operation to fill a number of large orders. An east wind was blowing at the time, but the fireman succeeded in preventing the fire spreading to adjoining buildings. The loss is placed at $100,000, partially covered by insurance. The company expects to rebuild immediately.

Died At Westbrook.

A death occurred at Westbrook a few minutes after midnight on Thursday morning, when Mrs. Elizabeth Eleanor Smith, widow of the late James Smith, passed peacefully away, after a painful illness of several years' duration, having been helpless for years. She was predeceased by her husband five months ago. The late Mrs. Smith was the daughter of the late John Gates, Westbrook, and was a life-long resident of that place, and was in her seventy-fourth year, being born Oct. 3rd, 1842. She was well known and highly respected. Seven

TUESDAY. Despite the very hot weather the children and parents spent an enjoyable day. The young people's moonlight in the evening was well patronized and proved an enjoyable outing.

The July issue of Rod and Gun is replete with material of interest to the sportsman, whether he be fisherman, hunter, dog fancier, gun crank, or what not. Bonnycastle Dale contributes the leading article, "The Pursuit of the Maskinonge"; F. V. Williams gives a chapter in the adventurous life of a Seal Pup; Geo. H. Saver relates an experience in which British Columbia sportsmen are attacked by grizzlies; Edward T. Martin describes a fight put up by a wild goose when attacked by a retriever; Other stories and articles, in addition to the regular departments are: Burns of Benwell, A Good Friday Visit to Jack Minor's Preserve near Kingville; Yachting in Cape Breton; Miseries of Fishing; A Tenderfoot lost in the woods of Cloudy Bay, Port Arthur, etc., etc. The July issue is a good one to tuck into the outer's kit when setting forth on his vacation.

Grace Church.

The unveiling of the Honor Roll of Grace Methodist church, took place on Sunday evening last. The church, which was beautifully decorated under the supervision of Mr. Roy Root, was filled both in auditorium and gallery. The service was in charge of the pastor, with him on the platform were Mr. Thos. W. Gibbard, Captain Manning of Toronto, Lieut. P. G. Might, of the 93rd Battalion, and Lieut.-Col. Cecil G. Williams, senior of the recruiting forces of the Dominion. The Honor Roll was unveiled by Mr. Gibbard, the ex-Mayor of Napanee, and the oldest trustee of the church. His remarks were timely, and very appropriate. Lieut. Might was spending the week end with his sister, Mrs. Cragg, and spoke a few words. He left Kingston on Monday night for overseas. The address of the evening was given by Colonel Williams. It is very doubtful if Col. Williams has many peers in this Dominion for the special work in which he is engaged. He spent 18 years in the British navy, and for years has been secretary of the Navy League of Canada, so that he is in touch with every phase of naval warfare. His references to our own brave boys—to the glory that has crowned the Canadians; to the ultimate outcome of this great struggle was most inspiring. The music by the choir was enjoyed by all. Special mention should be made of the duet, "Thy will be done," by Miss Green and Mr. Black; and the solo, "Beyond the Blue," by Miss M. McConachie. Miss McConachie was at her best, and her selection was all the more appropriate, in view of the fact that several of our men have paid the supreme sacrifice, and too, that her brother was killed in action on April 19th. Several have expressed regret that names of the men were not read out on Sunday evening. This will be done on Sunday evening next, together with seven or eight, who have enlisted since this honor roll was printed.

Women's Patriotic Service and Red Cross Work

Through the "U. E. Loyalist" Chapter, I.O.D.E.

A very kind and most appreciative letter has been received this week from Mrs. Gilbert of the Secours National, for assistance and supplies the above committed has from time to time, been able to furnish. It is encouraging in the efforts we have hitherto made, and which we are likely to continue in the future, to receive such gracious recognition.

Do not forget to make a worthy response to the appeal which the Branch of this Society in Toronto has sent out in Ontario, as a gift to the French people on their National Day, the anniversary of the founding of the French Republic, all of which was thoroughly explained in last week's papers.

In speaking of the French, the accounts appearing in the Canadian press recently of conditions existing in the little hospitals of Brittany are most appealing—we must try to help them in any way we can, for their needs are so great and urgent, and they seem to need help more than any others we have heard of. Even though weather conditions are hot and oppressive, and we are perhaps disinclined for any extra exertion, this we must remember, that our splendid troops and those of our brave Allies, must go forward to duty no matter if the weather is hot or cold, wet or dry. Therefore, let all think of this, and come to the work-room when it is open on Thursday and Saturday afternoons until 5.30 o'clock.
